What's cooking? Good looking is great, but different looking is better in your kitchen and your pharmacy.

Your spice rack and your pharmacy shelves have more in common than might first meet the eye. Think about it. Cooking spices and IV medications tend to be packaged in small vials with look-alike labels and small print. Have you ever grabbed the cumin or paprika when you really wanted the cinnamon because all three spice bottles looked the same? It probably made for a less-than-savory serving of French toast but, thankfully, you lived to tell about it. The stakes and consequences can be considerably higher if you grab the wrong medication to administer to a patient.

SAGENT's PreventIV Measures Packaging and Labeling is designed to help pharmacists and nurses avoid medication confusion at both the point of selection and the point of administration. It's important to note that color is only one of the tools we use to help distinguish our products. Our comprehensive approach also employs a unique label and carton design for each product and easy-to-read drug names and strengths, printed in larger type, to help maximize product differentiation.

That's PreventIV Measures Packaging and Labeling at work for you.
